

PROLIFE FACTS

Baroness Finlay of Llandaff and Mr Preston recently visited New Zealand and participated in a moderated panel discussion addressing end of life issues hosted by Paul Foster-Bell, National Party MP and chair of the NZ-UK Parliamentary Friendship Group. Baroness Finlay and Mr Preston are principals of "Living and Dying Well UK", which has a focus on Palliative care and associated issues. Baroness Finlay is a practising consultant at Velindre Cancer Hospital, Cardiff, and Professor of Palliative Medicine at Cardiff University. She has also been the President of the Royal Society of Medicine (from 2006 to 2008) and has been involved in a range of health related issues, including chairing the Select Committee on Allergies in Parliament in 2007. A former civil servant and parliamentary official, Robert Preston served as the Director of "Living and Dying Well" from its formation in 2010 until 2015, and now serves on the Board of Directors. The purpose of "Living and Dying Well" is to research and analyse the evidence around end of life issues, to apply "clear thinking" to them and to make the results available. It produces regular reports, provides speakers, e.g. for debates in universities, conferences or seminars, and also ensures that parliament is provided with information that "is grounded in hard evidence and rigorous analysis rather than in spin and sensationalism". Valuable information on this important and topical issue can be found on the "Living and Dying Well" website: www.livinganddyingwell.org.uk.
