

PROLIFE FACTS

The biggest 40 Days for Life campaign ever will take place in 375 cities between September 27 – November 5. 40 Days for Life is a peaceful community-based campaign encompassing the key elements of Prayer and fasting, Vigil and Community outreach. The aim is to promote a culture of life and to bring an end to abortion in our societies. As Shawn Carney, President of 40 Days for Life, has pointed out, the abortion industry is an industry that survives on despair. Although in New Zealand access to abortion is typically provided through the public health system and may not be seen as an industry as such, many NZ women who seek abortions do so because they are not sure they can cope with the difficulties that having a baby might bring into their lives, e.g. financial strain, disruption to education, family conflict, health concerns. These fears are real and to bring about any change in our society, it is important that those who value the culture of life are not judgemental, but instead do all they can to support ways to support those experiencing their pregnancy as a crisis, and find ways to offer real hope. Although New Zealand is not participating in this 40 Days for Life campaign, Voice for Life encourages pro-life Christians to pray for the success of the upcoming international campaign, as well as considering what they personally can do to help New Zealand society become more supportive of parents, no matter what their circumstances.
